SYNOPSIS:	Sancar is the son of a poor woodchopper, who has been living in Bodrum for his whole life and has never left the city Muğla before. In contrast, Nare is the daughter of an ambassador, who has been living in different cities throughout her life, such as Oslo, Tokyo, Cape Town, New Delhi, and Ottawa. Although they have been in love with each other since they were two innocent children, Nare and Sancar can only be together for a short time every year. Eventually, Nare decides to run away with Sancar, and they get married. On the day that they are finally getting together, Sancar believes that Nare cheated on him although the truth is that Nare was raped by her step-brother. After this misunderstanding, Nare mysteriously disappears, and no one sees her for a long time. As a poet writes a folk song about them saying that Nare became a bird and flew away, their sensational love turns into a legend among the local people, kept alive through word of mouth. After nine years, the ambassador's daughter returns on Sancar's wedding night to another woman to reveal the truth about her disappearance. While Sancar is dancing to Zeybek at his wedding, Nare shows up in front of him and says that she brought their daughter. As Sancar learns that he has a daughter named Melek, he decides to take her away from Nare. Meanwhile, Nare finds out that her rapist is not dead and that he is not going to be imprisoned for his crime. When Nare's father kidnaps Melek, Sancar and Nare declare a truce for their daughter and travel to Podgorica in Montenegro to take their daughter back. After being disappointed once again by Sancar, the ambassador's daughter decides to stand on her own feet. In the meantime, Sancar's best friend Gediz falls in love with Nare, which causes the two friends to fight. As these two men learn that Nare was raped by her step-brother Necdet, getting revenge from this man turns into their common goal.
