SYNOPSIS:	In the 90s, the 'Ustabaş' family was one of the prominent families in Trabzon. After the construction company founded by Ali Osman Ustabaş expanded in a short time, it became one of the leading construction companies in the region. Ali Osman had three children: Mustafa, Yusuf, and Cemile, whom he brought up amidst great challenges. For many years, Ali Osman led an exceptionally traditional life and worked diligently for his business. When it came time to decide who would take over the company, Ali Osman declared that the first of his children to give him a grandson would be appointed as the company's head. Cemile remains unmarried. Meanwhile, Yusuf and Mustafa, both married, have a daughter each. Yusuf's wife, Kerime, was pregnant when Ali Osman made his announcement. Consequently, they ardently hoped for a son. However, when Kerime gave birth to a daughter, Yusuf's hopes were dashed, as he assumed the company's leadership was crucial to him. In his desperation, he takes a risk and falsely declares the gender of their baby by saying to the family that they had a son.
