SYNOPSIS:	Four well-educated working young women in the middle-lower class districts of İstanbul…Unlike the traditional families of their neighborhood, they all have big dreams… But dreams do not always match up with a real life. Dicle's dream is to become a famous writer but she is working at a sign maker. Güneş's dream is to become a lawyer as a justice-warrior. Unfortunately, she is trying to finish her internship in three penny's worth foreclosure lawsuits in a law firm. Setenay's dream is to become a fancy curator. As yet, she is counting the stones at the bottom of the pot at a second-class gallery. Melike is a little more sophisticated. Her dream is to become the building contractor of a big, elegant residence. Right now, she hardly makes ends by renting for nothing. The life of these young women changes with the sudden death of their friend Meryem. On the one hand, our characters will try to find out who killed their friend, on the other, they will follow their dreams.
